a practical toolkit about homelessness

hello.

Homelessness has become a very painful reality for thousands of individuals across the area, and we are aware that this issue comes with many questions and concerns. This toolkit was designed to help the Santa Monica community know what to do and how to make a difference when faced with the reality of homelessness in our city. There is background info for understanding a bit about the issue, context for what the City and its partners are doing, and practical advice on ways we can all jump in and help.

Thankfully, with so many people already working together to provide immediate and long-term support, this toolkit reflects our community-wide effort to respond with compassion for everyone and at all levels. This toolkit is available to download at weare.santamonica.gov, and you can sign up for our email list if you'd like to stay informed.

We are inviting you to join us, our neighbors, local nonprofits, businesses, and community organizations in creating a stronger community for all.

We are Santa Monica.

we are experiencing a regional crisis.

53,000

individuals experiencing homelessness countywide

Over the last five years, homelessness has increased by 40% countywide, but in 2018, the number decreased by 3% with 53,000 individuals now affected. In Santa Monica, more than 950 people are living without a home.

13,000

people lose their housing every month in LA County

Due to many systemic problems—including rising rents, stagnant wages, and decreased development of affordable housing—more than 13,000 people lose their housing every month in LA County; in Santa Monica, approximately 27% of homeless individuals have been without a home for less than a month.

1 to 4

ratio of beds available to those experiencing homelessness

Many people are living on the streets and in public spaces because there is a shortage of shelter beds. Across LA County, there is only 1 bed for every 4 homeless individuals. In Santa Monica, there is 1 bed for every 2.2 homeless individuals.

If you or someone you know is on the brink of losing housing, there are services available locally. Contact the City and local nonprofits to find out what assistance is available.

- If you or someone you know is at risk of losing housing, the Santa Monica Housing Division is your first stop. Call 310.458.8743 or visit smgov.net/departments/HED. For LA County help, call 310.258.7400 or visit dpss.lacounty.gov. If you've served in active U.S. military, call 1.877.4AID.VET (24/7) or visit va.gov/homeless.
- If you are having trouble paying your mortgage, call the Los Angeles Center for Foreclosure Solutions at 1.888.995.HOPE or visit 995hope.org.
- If you are currently homeless and know a friend or family member who can offer permanent housing for you, Project Homecoming might be a helpful option for you. Call SMPD HLP Team at 310.458.8953 or visit santamonicapd.org/hlp to find out more.
- West Coast Care also helps with family reunification. Call 310.351.2565 or visit westcoastcare.org.
- If you are a renter in your home in Santa Monica, you have a number of rights and resources available to you. Find out more about fair housing and your rights by visiting smgov.net/consumer.

we are making a difference.

The City is working with County and State partners, the business and faith community, and nonprofit partners to engage our homeless population. In Nov. 2017, the City of Santa Monica authorized $1.4M in one-time funds to support the roll out of an Action Plan including new outreach teams, proactive place-based engagement strategies, and additional library resources. These funds are in addition to the annual $2.8M that the City puts toward service grants.

Over the last few years, residents across LA County voted to move forward with historic legislation that will build more housing (Measure HHH) and provide even more life-changing services to people experiencing homelessness (Measure H). Follow what the County is doing at homeless.lacounty.gov, and also check out everyoneinla.org.

Here are some of the new investments we are making that build on decades of getting people housed and connected to services:

Human Services

- 10–12 new outreach workers through contracts with LA County and local nonprofits. More service professionals will engage directly with the homeless in our parks, beaches and public spaces.

Police

- Every officer will be trained, informed and engaged on homeless issues and work in coordination with service providers and other City departments.
- New officers on the Homeless Liaison Program team and expanded partnerships with West Coast Care and the Department of Mental Health.

Housing

- Federal housing vouchers are available for households at risk of homelessness and for persons who became homeless, with the highest priority for seniors and persons living with disabilities.
- Create a new path for persons who were formerly homeless to “graduate” to less service-enriched housing.
- Initiate pilot programs to prevent homelessness by providing a basic needs subsidy to seniors who are extremely low-income and paying more than half their income toward rent.

Library

- Pop-up resource fairs provide direct access to services.
- Two new library services officers to help create a welcoming and positive environment for all visitors, and continued funding for one outreach specialist at all locations.
- Dedicated library social worker for those who do not receive or are ineligible for services.

Fire

- Explore deployment models that more efficiently address low acuity homelessness responses that impact local emergency rooms.
- Explore adding a social worker at high impact stations.
- New software program that uses data to predict needs by area and time of day, while maintaining response times.

how you can make a difference.

➤ start somewhere.

One of the most common experiences in increased homelessness is feeling uncomfortable and totally powerless. However, there are proactive steps you can take to address this issue, even if you feel overwhelmed or scared.

➤ Take some time to read up on the issue. Read Seascape's special February edition on homelessness at smgov.net/seascape which spotlights local nonprofits working on this issue, a story about a formerly-homeless woman, and answer frequently asked questions.

If you are a parent or caregiver, help your child understand what's going on.

- Answer questions simply and honestly.
- Express empathy for the person, and if your child is interested in doing something to help, find a local organization you can donate to or volunteer with together.
- Like with any stranger, encourage your child to be cautious and safe.

contact the experts.

If you see someone regularly who appears in need of non-emergency assistance, contact a trained individual or outreach team who knows what to do.

 Santa Monica's Police Department has a special unit called the Homeless Liaison Program (HLP) that uses both law enforcement and social service strategies to address homeless issues, especially mental illness. Save their number, 310.458.8953, in your phone or visit online at santamonicapd.org/hlp.

If there is suspicious activity going on, connect to officers in your neighborhood by calling the Police Dispatch at 310.458.8491 or visit santamonicapd.org. If there is a medical emergency or you feel threatened in any way, call 9-1-1.

If there's something that you're specifically concerned about, like trash or alley issues, submit comments, complaints or service requests 24/7 at santamonica.gov/contact.

If you run a local business and would like to connect with the local police about keeping the area safe, call about the Business Watch Program at 310.458.8474 or visit santamonicapd.org/businesswatch.

The most resounding advice from both formerly-homeless individuals and experts on the issue is to treat all people with respect, no matter their circumstance. Many people who live on the streets often feel inadequate or nonexistent to the rest of the world, but thoughtfully acknowledging and connecting with them can go a long way.

- Make casual eye contact and say “good morning”, “hello” or simply smile.
- If you have a minute, ask how they are doing and if they’d like to talk.
- If asked for money, you can decline or kindly refer them to St. Joseph Center’s Homeless Service Center (404 Lincoln Blvd., Venice) for food, shelter, housing referrals, and other resources from M–F starting at 7:30am. Visit stjosephctr.org for more information. If the person is 12–25 years old, you can refer them to the Safe Place for Youth (2469 Lincoln Blvd., Venice) for drop-in services Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday from 1–5pm. Visit safeplaceforyouth.org for more information.

- If you want to provide immediate assistance, consider food gift cards or personal care items instead of cash.
- If you attempt to talk to them but they are unwelcoming or make you feel uncomfortable, walk away and contact the experts. On page 8, there are suggested phone numbers if you’d like to call for help.

get involved.

Volunteering and participating in local events are great ways to not only provide real support to direct relief programs, but also meet people in the community who are experiencing homelessness.

 Volunteer with one of our service providers. Each organization has a wide range of needs, from administrative support to preparing and handing out meals to helping people prepare for a job to assembling welcome home kits to immediately help those recently housed. You can find a full list of service providers at the end of this toolkit or online at weare.santamonica.gov. We are working on identifying specific needs and sharing this information in an easier format, so please sign up at weare.santamonica.gov to get notified of upcoming events and opportunities!

-  Volunteer for the Annual Homeless Count, which happens on the last Wednesday of every January. Mark your calendar for next year! Visit santamonicahomelesscount.com for more information.
-  If you're an employer, hire someone who is formerly homeless to jumpstart their transition to independence through employment.
-  If you're a landlord, offer housing to a Santa Monica Housing Voucher holder. Contact the Santa Monica Housing Division at 310.458.8743 or visit smgov.net/housing to ask about current incentives.

➤ give generously.

Giving money to a homeless person on the street can feel like an emotional tug-of-war — you want to immediately alleviate their needs, but you are also worried of perpetuating a painful cycle. While panhandling is not illegal, giving them cash isn't recommended, as it doesn't encourage long-term relief or connection to services that can set individuals up for permanent housing and other solutions.

Instead, donate to our local service providers. Your generous gift will provide access to vital resources to help homeless individuals get back on their feet.

This summer, we will be releasing a more detailed guide for ways you can donate and volunteer. Sign up for our newsletter at weare.santamonica.gov to be notified.

If you'd like to give directly to a homeless person, consider the following alternatives to cash donations:

- Ask what they need right now, such as personal care items, gift cards or food, and see if you can immediately provide that.
- Have personal care packages ready to hand out. Recommended items include socks, hygiene items (toothbrush, soap, comb, etc), snacks and water, and a personal note.
- Hand out TAP cards to help homeless people get to their destination. You can buy and load TAP cards at a nearby vendor, Metro Rail Stations or online at taptogo.net.
- Provide care for homeless pets. Go to pawsla.org to donate toward food, vaccinations, crates and other essential needs of homeless pets.

advocate for change.

City and neighborhood council meetings are happening every week, and this is where we have the chance to listen and provide feedback on how policies are being implemented.

- The Santa Monica City Council is an elected group of people who discuss and decide on key issues for our City. They meet at 5:30 p.m. on the 2nd and 4th Tues. of each month, and hold additional special meetings as needed. Find out more at smgov.net/council or contact council members at council@smgov.net.
- Attend the next Homelessness Steering Committee meeting with a diverse set of stakeholders—social service providers, businesses, nonprofits, healthcare providers, residents and community leaders. For info about the next meeting, email homelessness@smgov.net.
